Against All Odds Scholarship Application

The Life After High School is proud to present the Derek Edwards Against All Odds Scholarship. Derek Edwards became paralyzed from the neck down after making a tackle during a high school football game. Despite his injury, Derek finished high school, then attended Delgado Community College, before going on to graduate with a bachelor of science degree from Tulane University, and later receiving his law degree from Loyola University College of Law.

This scholarship invites graduating high school seniors, parents or teachers to nominate one student who has overcome a difficult obstacle in his or her life, and continued attending high school. In no more than 500 words, please describe the adversity and how the student overcame it. Please submit by April 23rd, 2009, at 11:59 p.m. The winner will receive a $500 dollar scholarship. Please send nominations to ejbindom@loyno.edu.
